A GOOD MEETING.

Cranberry Men and Their Families Hold a Summer Session.

The August meeting of the Wisconsin State Cranberry Growers' association was held at the Gaynor-Blackstone marsh on Tuesday, August 15, and the meeting was a most successful one from start to finish. The attendance of those interested in cranberry culture was very good and great interest was manifested in the business part of the meeting.

Quite a number of those interested in the business of raising cranberries appeared on the grounds during the forenoon, and they put in the time in looking over the grounds of the experimental station. Here there were some interesting matters for the consideration of the grower. Among the experiments that have been in progress since the establishment of the station by the state is the matter of fertilizers. On one of the sections where phosphates and nitrates have been in use there appears to be a growth and production of berries that is much better than on the sections where these fertilizers have not been used, and as a consequence the growers who viewed the results felt that something definite is being accomplished that in time will be of great benefit to them. As a matter of course, the result of these experiments cannot be told definitely on short notice, but after a few years growers will probably have some reliable data to go by. It is figured that this kind of fertilizer can be applied for the nominal sum of $3 an acre, which would make it an easy thing for growers to utilize.

Another matter that the men at the experimental station are looking after is the fruit worm. In years gone by Wisconsin has been almost immune from the ravages of the fruit worm, but it seems that they have at last put in an appearance here, and the consequence is that it is of great moment that means be discovered to combat the evil.

In sections where the fruit worm has worked to any extent there has been great loss from the pest, the consequence being that crops have at times been totally destroyed by the worms.

Dinner was served by the ladies of the marsh at noon, and this feature of the occasion was one to be long remembered by those present. The ladies on the marsh are noted for their hospitality and good cooking, having acquired a reputation along this line years ago, and the spread of Tuesday did nothing to detract from their former reputation.

The business meeting in the afternoon was called to order by S. N. Whittlesey, who made a short address of welcome, after which he touched on the cranberry business in general. He spoke of the youth of the industry, stating that so far as Wisconsin was concerned it was only about thirty-five years old. It was about this long ago that the Carey Bros., who lived near Berlin picked 10,000 bushels of berries and received $100,000 for them. Mr. Whittlesey also stated that in 1890 he picked 2,000 barrels off from 20 acres. These, of course, were all wild berries, and it was Mr. Whittlesey's opinion that the investigations should be toward discovering the conditions that produced these enormous yields in the wild state and then to duplicate them on the tame marshes.

Judge John A. Gaynor made a report as statistician, and his estimate was that the crop would be slightly less than last year. The crop last year was about 1,200,000 barrels, and he figured that the output this year would be a trifle over a million barrels.

A. O. Bennett had a paper on marketing. He was strongly of the opinion that there should be a state inspector whose duty it should be to inspect the cranberries and see that none were sent out except those that were right in every way. He thought that such an inspector would be the means of putting the Wisconsin product on a higher plane and also give Wisconsin berries a better reputation. At the conclusion of his talk a committee of three, consisting of Judge Gaynor, A. E. Bennett and Andrew Searles, was appointed to draft a law providing for the appointment of a state inspector as suggested by Mr. Bennett.

It was decided that the rate for picking this year should be the same as last year. This means that the rate will be anything that the growers see fit to pay.

A resolution was offered by Mr. Gaynor to the effect that any member of the association who had any unusual variety of berries, should donate five pounds of the vines to the experimental station same, to be used to experiment with.

A paper was read by A. S. Robinson on Water and fertility, which was listened to with great interest. He pointed out how necessary it was to know the composition and ingredients of the soil in order to be successful in the business.

Prof. Elliott addressed those assembled, and explained that he was on the ground for the purpose of studying the drainage and irrigation problems as they existed on the cranberry marsh and that in every instance he would co-operate with the state in the work he was doing.

Prof. L. P. Haskins explained the work of the experimental station and told what was hoped to be accomplished along the line of fertilizers. He also explained some experiments that had been made with lime water, the conclusion that had been arrived at being that such water was necessary for the growing of the berry, the experiments showing that the presence of hard water would kill the vines.

A vote of thanks was given to Payson Bros. and A. V. Chaney for the liberal supply of fruit donated for the occasion by these merchants. This ended the business session and an adjournment was taken to see the Gaynor Grader in operation. The inventor and perfecter of this machine is Mr. James Gaynor, and it is the opinion of cranberry men who have seen his machine in operation that he has a good thing. Mr. Gaynor now uses a gas engine to operate this grader, and it is a great improvement over hand work.

Besides the large number of local growers present there were a number there from abroad, they being as follows: Prof. A. R. Whitson of the University of Wisconsin, Judge R. M. Lewis of St. Paul, Alvin Day of Murray and Day, Tomah, H. B. Johnson, Tomah, E. K. Tuttle of Mather, D. R. Burr of Berlin, J. D. Potter of Pittsville, Ed. Phippen of Warrens, F. A. Warner of Warrens, Chas. C. Farrar of St. Louis, A. C. Bennett of Cameron, M. H. Lynn of Nekoosa, A. S. Robinson of Grand Rapids, F. M. Waterman of Cumberland, Geo. M. Clark of Waupun, E. Payson and Charles Frankler of Kaukas City, F. H. Gehlert of Black River Falls and Prof. C. C. Elliott of Washington, D. C.

The festivities of the day were concluded with a dance at the Bennett marsh, which was also very successful affair.

Things Theatrical.
"Two Merry Tramps", as presented by Wood & Ward's big company is not one of the ordinary melodramatic type of tramp plays, but strictly a musical farce comedy with a thread of a plot that one need not bother their head to follow.

The musical numbers are all taken from the latest standard operas blended together so as make a complete musical comedy. Open house, Thursday, Aug. 19.

Must Pay the Freight.

Now surprises are being sprung continually by the railroads of Wisconsin, upon the people of the state as to what the roads operating in Wisconsin will and will not be able to do in the future, in the way of accommodations for the traveling public, under the recent railroad legislation.

The latest announcement is that tents and camp equipment, used by hunting, fishing and camping parties, can no longer be carried by the railroads as baggage. The general baggage agents of the Wisconsin roads have just issued positive instructions to all agents, to the effect that under the Wisconsin laws no railway employee will in the future, "accept, for transportation as baggage, any tent, camp equipment, or any other article not authorized to be carried as ordinary baggage, belonging to any resident of the state of Wisconsin."

To make this point plain beyond a doubt the circulars declare that "agents will not check free any excess baggage above the legal free allowance of 150 pounds for each full ticket, or 75 pounds for each half ticket, and no other articles can be checked as baggage; these rules will be strictly enforced to avoid discrimination, which is prohibited by law."

In the past every road in Wisconsin has extended special courtesies to parties going on hunting, fishing or camping trips by carrying their camp outfit as baggage, either as excess baggage at excess rates, or free. Hereafter all will have to be sent by express or freight.

Mid-Summer Concert.

In this age of progress such perfection was attained in the mechanical arts, that it is a mooted question which is the best performer man or the machine man has made. The Mid-Summer concert aims to put them side by side and let the audience judge.

The machines used will be Far. rand's Cecilian, Victor and Edison Phonographs. Among those who will take part in the program are O. W. Dodge of Port Edwards, E. M. James of Waupun, Mrs. Charles Dixon, F. J. Turner, Earl Price, Nellie Steib and Miss Helen Gilkey. This will be one of the events of the season. Don't miss it.

The concert will be held in the M. E. church Wednesday evening, Aug. 23rd. Don't forget the date.

State Picnic, Equitable Fraternity Union Fund du Lac, Wis. Tickets via the North-Western Line will be sold at reduced rates August 23 and 24, limited to return until August 26, inclusive. Reduced rates also on certificate plan. Apply to agents Chicago & North-Western R'y.

WERE GOOD RACES.

Not a Large Crowd Out to See the Horses Last Friday.

There was not a very large crowd of people out last Friday to see the races at the fair grounds. The fact that most of the horses were owned by one man probably had something to do with the lack of interest, but notwithstanding this fact, they were very good and well worth the time and small admission fee charged.

The greatest interest in the races was centered about the 2:30 race, in which S. L. Stevens of Nekoosa had entered his horse in order to fill out the race. The majority of the crowd wanted to see Mr. Stevens win the race, but it was evident that he was in too fast company, and that it was possible for either of the other two to win if their drivers cared to let them out. However, the fact that Mr. Stevens has put a good horse with considerable speed was evident to all, and the three horses in the race came in with hardly a foot separating their noses.

Considerable interest was taken in Ella Range, the lone pacer, who stepped off a half mile in very neat style without a skip. It was said that had she had a pacer she would have made much better time.

There was also a pony race between Harold Arpin and Willie Dieckhoff, in which the Arpin horse came out ahead.

Lewis and Clark Fair Notes.

Pay dirt worth $1.20 a bucket is exhibited by Nome, Alaska, at the Lewis and Clark exposition, as evidence of the still untold wealth of the Seward Peninsula.

The Lewis and Clark exposition has offered a prize of $25 for the best golf to be used on Portland Day, September 30. The idea is to secure a golf that will have the ring and swing, to it that makes college "rooting" at football games and other athletic events a success. All golfers must be received by Secretary Henry E. Reed of the Exposition not later than August 31, and should have on the envelope the words "Portland Day."

The biggest gold brick ever cast, nearly as large as two building bricks placed end to end, which contains $25,000 worth of gold that is purer than the gold in a twenty-dollar coin, has just arrived at the Lewis and Clark exposition and is being exhibited by the Nome district of Alaska as evidence that Nome is still a great gold-producing region. The gold brick is a foot long, four inches deep and five inches wide, and weighs approximately ninety pounds.

The Trail, the amusement street of the Lewis and Clark exposition, is now opened on Sunday from one o'clock on. The question of opening the Trail on Sunday was one which bothered the exposition authorities for several months. The Trail people finally appealed to the courts for a decision of the controversy, and Judge Frazier of the circuit court decided that the shows had a right to run. The popularity of the decision was evidenced by the fact that the attendance on July 30, the first Sunday when the Trail was open, was nearly double that of other Sundays.

The Country Cousins.

There is nothing about the good, honest country boy or girl that the town relatives need be ashamed of. The little difference in manners which seem so uncouth do not amount to much, they are mere differences of training and environment, not of heart. The boy from the country who does not remove his hat when he speaks to a woman is not rude, but just unused as yet to city ways. And he will "catch on" in a short time, never fear.

And just give the girl who is wearing the styles of two years ago a chance and she will blossom forth in an up to date costume and be cannelier than ever. But if she is one of the kind who never will be anything but gawky and he is the kind who will never be anything but a "jay," what's the difference, if their hearts are in the right place?

A woman is more than the clothes she wears and a man more than the bow he can make. "A man's a man for a' that and a' that." Society is all right, but don't sacrifice your own people, the plain folks from the country, for it—for the people in silks who care nothing for you and whom you really care nothing for. In your hour of need, in sorrow and sickness they will be chattering over their teacups and it will be you own despised, uncouth folk that help you and nurse you.—Chicago Chronicle.

Marshfield News.—E. S. Renne, former county clerk, paid Marshfield a business visit last week. Ed's hair may be a shade lighter than of old but otherwise he looks and acts like one contented with the way the world is moving. Chas. E. Smith has disposed of his residence on Vine street to the Episcopal congregation for a parsonage, consideration $3500. Mr. Smith will move to his farm at Milladore. A. J. Empey, the Milladore merchant and manufacturer, will again enter the mercantile business at his old stand and is having the store building remodeled. His stock of goods began arriving last week.

Wanted the Monkey Arrested.

Last Saturday an estate woman reported before Justice Patton, Thos. and made a complaint to the effect that the monkey had acted as an itinerant organ grinder had stolen a little boy, and she wanted something done about it. Now the organ is quite a gallant when his liver is in working order and under the most trying circumstances he always tries to please the ladies. In this instance, however, he was rather out of a tree. He asked the lady if she wanted the monkey arrested, and she was not sure about the matter, she thought this would be better than nothing. It seems that the boy had been taken on the street and the lady was ever taken sick. The boy would be attacked the same way. The judge asked the lady what she had been doing about the time the monkey abandoned by the more recent set of medical men, and that in all probability the child would not suffer any severe after effects.

This was all right in fact a it went, but the lady thought that the judge ought to serve out a warrant for the organ grinder, just the same, and send the police after him and make him pay the doctor bill. As the judge had left town and the doctor bill was duly paid, he thought he was hardly justified in issuing a warrant. The lady left her home thoroughly convinced that the judge was no gentleman and that the law was not for poor people.

Beef to Wrestle Jenkins.

Special Dispatch to the Tribune.

New York, Aug. 16. Harvey Park, who is now in Princeton, Mass., has written here that Fred Beall, the Marshfield, Wis., wrestler, will make his debut in public in New York in a match with Tom Jenkins. The contest is to be held in Madison Square garden in the first week in October.

"Beall," writes Parker, "is training every day. In my opinion he is one of the greatest little fellows that ever went on the mat. He was not entirely at his best when he met Jenkins in private in New York last spring. Beall did all the work, on the first hour of the match. And know it is no easy task to have around a man of Jenkins' build, especially when he has the advantage in an opponent, as Beall has. That the mat has a little larger feel confident that Fred would have won. He had Jenkins partly on his back several times, but either the partition or the wall was in the way. Beall is going to do a lot of wrestling this season. We would be pleased to get John Phillips on the mat, but I don't think there is any chance of such a match taking place. If Beall will accept a contest with Beall, I will bet $1,000 that Fred will succeed in throwing him five times in less than two hours at catch as catch can style."

Bound Over to Circuit Court.

John Quack, "Popcorn" Rooney and Joe Payson were arrested on Thursday on complaint of J. J. Can. ning, who charged the boys with having stolen a chicken from him, and during the time Mr. Can. ning missed one of his chickens, and suspecting that the boys might have stolen it to eat he had them arrested. The evidence did not appear very strong against them but the judge bound them over to the circuit court. All of the boys seemed well.

Naming the Streets.

During the past week George La. breche has been engaged in naming up the street signs in the different parts of the city. Where it is possible the signs are nailed onto buildings or trees but in other places iron posts are set into the ground and the signs fastened to those. Many of the names of the streets have been changed on both sides of the river, and as a consequence some of the names that have become a part of the city will be heard of no more under the new order of things.

Bankruptcy Sale.

Reeler Bros. stock of general merchandise and fixtures inventoried at about $1100 will be sold at Reeler's store, City Point, Wisconsin, August 22nd, at 12:30 o'clock noon. Some building can be purchased. This is a good location and an excellent opportunity to take up and continue an established business.

A. E. Gerner, trustee.

Got Thirty Days.

Henry Vandenberg was arrested on Saturday on a charge of being drunk and disorderly and upon being taken before Justice Keyes was fined $25, or given the choice of going to jail. He chose the later course.
